

Professor Babb Announces Faculty

Prof. H. A. Babb, superintendent of the Mt. Sterling City Schools, has announced the High School faculty as follows:

Mrs. Ben R. Turner—Principal, French and Latin.
Miss Alice Cassidy—English.
Miss Elsie Potter—Home Economics.
Miss Edith Back—Mathematics.
Mr. O. E. Huddle, Science and Athletics.

Miss Back and Mr. Huddle are both new teachers in the Schools. Miss Back is the daughter of W. O. Back, of this city. She is a graduate of Berea College and has been teaching in Illinois for the past two years.

Mr. Huddle's home is Bowling Green, Ky. He is from Ogden College and taught science in the academic department of that institution last year. This summer Mr. Huddle has been taking a course in athletic coaching in the Illinois University at Urbana, Ill.

Miss Back and Mr. Huddle are both highly qualified. They have had successful teaching experiences and they both come in every way well recommended.

THE COLORED FAIR

Tomorrow, the 10th, the gates of the Colored Fair will swing wide open. The officers say they are going to show the "white folks" a sure enough fair. The colored people deserve great credit for their activity and progressiveness and we feel certain they are going to have a high class exhibition. We understand the trotters and runners, that insure real sport, will be here.

P. L. Hensley, president, with his co-workers, insure a good time to all who will be orderly, but to those who delight in disturbing, woe unto them. We bespeak for our colored people a pleasant and profitable week. Let everybody go to the fair the four big days, beginning on the 10th and closing with Saturday, the 13th.

Unwritten Law Scored

Joe M. Henry, father of Woodson Henry, of this city, who was killed by Verne Jones, recently pardoned by Governor Edwin Morrow, has sent the following letter to the Governor:

"Mt. Sterling, Ky., Aug 6, 1921.
"Hon. Edwin P. Morrow, Governor, Frankfort, Ky.

"My dear Sir—I have just read your alleged reasons for the pardoning of Verne Jones, for the killing of my son, Woodson Henry.

"You say the deceased broke up Jones' home, etc. The evidence in this case was stenographically reported. You, therefore, followed your course in the now famous Blair case and did not read the record, or have misstated it. As a matter of fact Jones had no home to destroy. His wife had been for years unfaithful. This was proven beyond a doubt, as was also Jones' knowledge of her infidelity. That he had had trouble with other men, at divers places, covering practically his entire married life, was also proven beyond dispute.

"In Kentucky, where life is cheap and disregard for law and order is widespread, it is refreshing to read an editorial like that in the Courier-Journal of August 3, concerning your sentimental statements about the 'unwritten law.' As the possessor of a law license you must know there is no such thing as 'unwritten law,' except in the minds of the vicious and unthinking. Your statement of the facts is therefore untrue in point of fact and unsound in law, if true.

"I might add that no opportunity was given the family of the deceased or the representatives of the Commonwealth to be heard by you before you acted upon this application for executive clemency, and while I appreciate the fact that this feeble protest will accomplish nothing, since by your abuse of power, the murderer of my son is now a free man, I am writing you this letter and handing copies of it to the press, in order that the people of the state may know of this one more miscarriage of common justice.

"Very respectfully,
"JOE M. HENRY."

To the Citizens of Mt. Sterling and Montgomery County:

This body is non-political and this is a non-political letter. "Politics is Hell" only that it—as a rule—leaves disgruntled, defeated candidates; some who, with their friends and supporters, carry a hard feeling toward the winner and "his gang"—to the detriment of the citizens as a whole.

Times are not so prosperous that we can—for the sake of this display of "agin-you" feeling—and now that it is all over, winners announced and ready to assume office, let's ALL co-operate, going to the winner and handing our hand of congratulation, work for better, bigger and more prosperous town and county. That's really where our hearts SHOULD be—in our schools, churches, good roads and good government. The Lord has favored us with the best land and has peopled it with the best people on the face of this grand old U. S. A.—Let's show our appreciation.

Times ARE hard—But we have all seen 'em worse. They said the corn crop was ruined, but we are told that the late rain saved a good portion of it.

"The tobacco crop," so they said, "is a complete failure," but in drives through about twenty counties in the past two weeks inquiry discloses that it is equal—in this immediate section especially—to what it was last year and year before.

The cattle market, it is true, is off—but then the hog market is up; if you were on the cattle end of it then it was only poor judgment—you'll do better, perhaps, next time.

The Bank Deposits are not what they were last year, but they are considerably in excess of what they have ever been in normal times.

It is not "Hard Times Coming" but only "Soft Times Going." Some few are worse off than they were five years ago, but the majority—excepting those who plunged and that's always liable to get you in bad—are in better circumstances than ever before. We have the best town in the best state in the best country in the world—let's each do his part in keeping it so. How?

BOOST

Boost your city, boost your friend, boost the lodge that you attend; Boost the street on which you're dwelling, boost the goods you are selling; Boost the people round about you, they can get along without you; But success will quicker find them, if they know that you're behind them.

Boost for every forward movement, boost for every new improvement; Boost the man for whom you labor, boost the stranger and your neighbor; Cease to be a chronic knocker, cease to be a progress blocker; If you'd make your city better, boost it to the final letter.

LET'S GO !!

Yours for the upbuilding, the betterment and improvement of our town and our county.

Virgil Hainline Again In Toils of Law

Following the trial of James Kash, before County Judge E. W. Senff today, a court of inquiry was held and it developed from the testimony of Kash that he had bought whiskey on three different occasions from Virgil Hainline, a former saloonist. Judge Senff immediately halted the proceedings, issued warrants for Hainline, charging him with selling whiskey in violation of the prohibition law and a search warrant, commanding the officers to search his premises for moonshine liquor. Deputy Sheriff V. R. Faulkner, accompanied by policemen Guilfoile and Tipton went to Mr. Hainline's residence and began their search. One room was locked and Hainline would not give up the keys to it until informed by the Deputy Sheriff that unless he did, the door would be broken. Over fifty half-gallon jars that had contained whiskey were found, together with two gallon jars filled with moonshine and a two-gallon bucket filled with pints and half pints also full. The whiskey and Hainline were then taken before Judge Senff, who held Hainline to answer before the grand jury on three cases for selling whiskey to Kash and one case for having it in his possession for the purpose of sale and fixed his bond at $500 in each case, or an aggregate of $2,000. In default of bond Hainline was remanded to jail. Hainline is already under indictment for selling liquor and will be tried on all the cases at the coming October term of the Montgomery Circuit Court. The illegal sale of whiskey has been more evident of late and a determined effort is being made by our local officers to rid our county of the traffic.

Long Illness Proves Fatal to L. P. Evans

Following a prolonged illness, Leslie P. Evans, mayor of Richmond, died Monday at the Good Samaritan hospital, Lexington. He had been seriously ill with pleurisy for nine weeks, but his death, which came at 3:30 yesterday morning, following a heart attack, came unexpectedly.

The mayor's condition became so serious July 27 that he was taken to the Good Samaritan hospital for treatment. The following Saturday his condition became so serious that members of his family were sent for. When it became known in Richmond that Mayor Evans was not expected to live, special prayer meetings were held in several churches and business men closed their stores that Saturday afternoon to ask that his life be spared. His condition appeared to be improved after that, and he appeared to be holding his own until the last.

Upon the solicitation of friends, Mr. Evans again became a candidate for mayor and Saturday was renominated by a plurality of 140 votes over three other candidates. Upon being told Saturday night that he had been successful in the primary he said, "Now I can sleep well tonight."

Mr. Evans was a deacon in the Baptist church of Richmond, had been superintendent of the Sunday school 17 years, and belonged to the Masonic order. He was a native of Richmond and spent practically his entire life there.

Besides his wife, who was formerly Miss Laura Lynn, two daughters, Nannie Chenault Evans and Lynn Evans, and three sons, Leslie P. Evans, Jr., Richard Evans and Geo. Evans, survive. He also leaves four brothers and one sister, George Evans, of Kansas City; Overton and Joseph Evans, of this city; William Evans, of Panama, and Mrs. Thos. Pickles, Baltimore, Md.

The body was taken to Richmond for interment.

DADDY OF TRAINS STEAMS FOR ANOTHER RUN

In August, 1831, the DeWitt Clinton, first train of the Mohawk & Hudson Railroad, now of the New York Central lines, made its first trip from Albany to Schenectady. Times changed as man advanced and the little DeWitt Clinton gave way to its bigger and better fellows, the Pacific type locomotive which now hurries the Twentieth Century across country at 70 miles an hour.

All this time the little train has been kept intact and used as an exhibit. This month it comes to life again and will make the trip from New York to Chicago under its own power, where it will be on exhibit in the Pageant of Progress, to be held there the latter part of this month. The picture shows the DeWitt Clinton and Twentieth Century in New York Terminals.

Farm and Home News From Over Kentucky

Todd county farmers, who are co-operating with County Agent I. C. Graddy, and the Extension Division of the College of Agriculture in the elimination of scrub dairy sires from the county, are making rapid progress in the movement, according to reports from the county. Three meetings were recently held in the interests of the drive, at which time 45 farmers agreed to use nothing but pure-bred sires on all their dairy stock.

Graves county boys and girls have enjoyed one of the most successful club camps held up to the present time in the series of 23 being conducted by the junior agricultural club department of the College of Agriculture, according to reports made by club workers. More than 105 farm boys and girls of the county were enrolled in the camp.

More than 75 Jersey breeders in Christian and Todd counties recently made a tour of successful dairy farms in the counties to acquaint themselves with the methods being practiced by other breeders. The breeders were accompanied by E. M. Previtt, dairy extension specialist from the College of Agriculture.

Marion county boys and girls have started their preparations for the junior livestock judging contest which will be held at the Kentucky State Fair September 14th. Candidates for the team, which will represent the county, are being trained by County Agent H. J. Childress.

A total of more than 170 Marion farmers and their wives recently attended six poultry culling demonstrations held by County Agent H. J. Childress, according to a report by him. Methods of culling the looper hens were explained to the poultrymen and their wives and circulars, outlining the method distributed. Twenty-five of those who saw the demonstration agreed to cull their flocks.

Ten Carroll county farm boys are candidates for the junior livestock judging team which will represent that county in the contest to be held at the Kentucky State Fair, September 14. The boys are being trained by County Agent G. C. Rount and Assistant County Agent R. M. Greene.

It sometimes looks like the uppermost finch of the United States has hit the ceiling.

Fruit Exhibits Scored on Good Points

Condition or freedom from blemishes and uniformity are the two important points to consider in selecting specimens of fruit for exhibition, according to suggestions made by members of the horticultural department of the College of Agriculture to farmers and fruit growers who expect to make displays at their county or state fair this fall. No wormy apples or those seriously blemished by scab, blight or other disease should be shown since even minute blemishes may prevent an exhibit from securing the award when competition is very close. Proper spraying will insure fruit that is reasonably free from insects and diseases. In all cases where the stem naturally remains attached to the fruit as in apples and pears, care should be taken to see that the stem is not broken or missing. Bruising of fruit which is to be shipped long distances to the place of exhibition may be avoided by wrapping each specimen separately in paper and placing packing about it.

In order to secure uniformity in the exhibit all specimens in the plate, tray or box should be as closely alike in form, size and color as possible. Fruit in the middle of the box or package should be equal in every respect to that placed on top, since lowering of quality beneath the surface of the display is usually scored severely. According to the standard of most fairs, a plate of apples, peaches, pears, paw paws and quinces consists of five specimens. A plate of grapes is made up of five bunches, while a plate of plums and persimmons consists of a six-inch plate filled.

Sudan Grass Relieves

Shortage of Pastures

Sudan grass is solving the problem of parched pastures for dairymen at the College of Agriculture farm and making it possible for them to supply the dairy herd with green feed, according to Mr. J. J. Hooper, head of the college dairy department. Farmers who do not have sudan grass will profit by feeding their cows green corn or silage during the period of dried-up pastures, according to the dairymen. Cows that are well-nourished and carried through this period in good shape will be stronger and better milkers in the fall and winter when milk is high priced, than cows that are allowed to get thin and weak at this time.

"It has been the custom at the college farm for several years to sow from six to ten acres of sudan grass in May, in preparation for the dry period which usually comes in the summer," Mr. Hooper said. "This year the drought has been unusually severe and has reduced the growth of the grass which is only about three feet high at the present time in spite of the fact that it is a drought resister. The grass is mowed and fed to the cows at the rate of 50 pounds for each cow daily. This has been found to be an especially profitable practice in stimulating and increasing the milk flow. As there is no blue grass pasture available at this time the cows are being fed some grain at the rate of one pound to every three and one-half pounds of milk produced. The grain mixture consists of four parts of corn meal, two parts of cotton seed meal and two parts of wheat bran.

"If no form of pasture is available the cows should be fed 10 to 12 pounds of clover hay, or 30 lbs of silage in addition to this grain. Cutting green corn and feeding it to the cows at the rate of 30 pounds each day will be found to be a very profitable practice. Dry cows may be fed a grain and hay ration, consisting of eight to ten pounds of grain each day and six to eight pounds of hay along with what pasture they can get. Kentucky dairymen would profit by breeding more of their cows to freshen in the fall and should, therefore, carry them through the hot summer months as dry cows. This permits plenty of time in the winter to care for animals when the price of milk is high and leaves more time during the summer for the production of winter feeds."

Cover Crops Supply Soil Organic Matter

Growing a winter cover crop is the best means of supplying organic matter to needy soils, specialists, who have studied soil fertility problems, say. When turned under in the spring the crop becomes active quickly and is not only a source of available fertility, but also makes applied fertilizers more effective. Both limestone and phosphate give better returns when supplemented with organic matter, according to results of experiments which also show that rock phosphate in particular, is assisted in increasing the crop yields when used in connection with cover crops to supply organic matter.

A poor soil is usually one which is low in organic matter, while a soil which contains a good supply of organic matter is easily and rapidly built up to a state of high productiveness. There is no commercial organic matter which can be profitably used by the farmer and for that reason he must grow it or manufacture it in the form of stable manure.

Husband Declares She Couldn't Have Held Out Much Longer. Gains Fifteen Pounds

"Honestly, I don't believe my wife would be living today but for Tanlac," declared O. B. Brantner, 2324 Chase street, Toledo, Ohio.

"Why, Tanlac has not only relieved all her troubles, but has built her up fifteen pounds in weight besides. For three years she suffered from indigestion, nervousness and other troubles, and kept getting worse until she was almost a complete wreck."

"I spent hundreds of dollars for medicine and treatment, but nothing did her a particle of good. She couldn't eat or sleep, suffered constantly from severe headaches and fell off in weight until she was just a shadow of what she had been. She got weaker all the time and was going down hill so fast I didn't see how she could stand it much longer."

"I was right on the verge of despair, and didn't know which way to turn when I decided as a last resort, to see what Tanlac could do for her. It was astonishing to see how fast she began to improve. She now has a fine appetite, is free from nervousness and is stronger and in better health generally than she has been for years. My gratitude to Tanlac is unbounded, and I am more than glad to tell what it has done for my wife."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

"He seems satisfied, too. How'd you do it?"

"Did everything he asked me to. Let him work only four hours and eat with the family. He got to complaining of dull evenings, so every night I give him the use of a car of his own, and the money to spend, to go to the movies in town."

"That ought to satisfy him."

"It didn't, though. He complained of his room, and so I coaxed my son to trade rooms with him. Then he seemed more settled like."

"I notice you've cut off your whiskers, Ezra."

"Yeah. Some more of that hired man's notions."

"How's that?"

The Hog Situation In Kentucky

By "Jim" McKee

Forest Home Farms, Versailles, Ky.—There have been so many requests coming to our office as the oldest breeders of pedigreed Durocs in the State or Kentucky that we take great pleasure in giving you our views of the situation. On our own farm we are satisfied that hogs today are paying us the best returns for the money invested. We are buying feeds capable of producing the six cent hog and yet the market is paying eleven seventy-five. Do you know that there is hardly a county in the State of Kentucky today where a man could buy a car-load of feeder hogs? You know in your community that hogs are scarce, and we know as breeders, conversant with conditions, that hogs are scarce over the entire country. The government report gives a shortage of five million hogs. There is the greatest surplus of fed on American farms today that we have ever had and reports indicate that we will produce the largest corn crop in our history.

The livestock farmer is no longer competing against the world in the consumption of grain. We are not exporting feeds as we did several years ago, and the surplus is accumulating. There is a decrease of over ten million animals in the United States that normally live on grain. What are you going to do with your surplus? The market tells the tale. Grains are a drag on the market and hogs are selling at tremendous profits and there is a great shortage of feeders.

Things go by currents. The grain farmers have had their innings for the last five years, but the tables are turned for the livestock farmer. He is not only making big money on hogs today, but they are going up and it will take two years before they can supply the deficit. Are you prepared to take advantage of this opportunity? Have you enough hogs to consume your corn? Corn is selling in Iowa today at 42c and oats at 25c. What will happen when the bumper crop of corn is harvested? Can you afford to feed scrub hogs? You can no more feed the scrub hogs today than you can cut your wheat with a sickle or plant your corn with a jobber.

You want an efficient animal to consume your feed. You want a pedigreed Duroc of the greatest efficiency. You want the new improved, big type Duroc of bone, of scale and ruggedness. You want a hog that is an easy feeder. You must have early development. Right here is where a lot of farmers have jumped a cog. Right here is where the big Duroc asserts his claims for preeminence. They will grow until they are four years old. They are late maturing but they are quickly and easily developed—that is finished. They can be marketed at 6 to 8 months of age, weighing 250 to 300 pounds, or they can be carried to maturity and made to weigh 800 to 1,000 pounds.

I talked the other day in a Kentucky farmer's feed lot and this man is a real honest-to-God hog man. He has sold every year in the last ten years, from ten thousand to twenty-five thousand dollars' worth of hogs, raising all the hogs, and producing all the feed, with the exception of tankage and oil meal. This farmer had 225 hogs on clover that he was feeding forty scrop fulls of corn a day. He said, "Jim, these hogs will average 225 pounds and are ready for market, but I can't afford to sell them for 81-2c, because I believe hogs are going to 12c. Now, these hogs are big type Durocs, for I got their ancestors from your farm, and because they are big type of Durocs I can still continue to feed them until the 15th of September, market them any day the prices are right

J. W. JONES & SON

JEWELRY

"Highest Quality"

and still make big money. I do not want any kind of Duroc but the extreme big type Duroc, for it makes me money and it is going to make me more money in the future."

This breeder also said that he was going to convert one of his large cattle barns into a hog farrowing barn and expected to raise 1,000 pigs a year. He said, "See those 175 Shorthorn steers which should weigh 1,550 pounds in August—why those big fellows are going to lose me $60 a head, and I have made up my mind to get in the hog business—raise all my feeds, improve my land and make sure and safe money."

Don't you think that when you can produce hogs for 6c and sell them for 11.75, that it is a money-making business? Don't you think it will pay to raise hogs in Kentucky? You can't afford to raise and breed the scrubs, because a pedigreed Duroc Jersey is the most improved pork machine. It is the result of scientific study and scientific selection. Don't you believe an educational campaign to induce farmers to breed pedigreed swine would be a money-making proposition for them?

Well, if you think so and believe in a cause that is right, we are going to give the Kentucky farmers this opportunity, for on August 15, at Forest Home Farms, McKee Bros. Versailles, Ky., are going to sell 43 extreme big type Duroc Jersey pedigreed immune bred sows and a few choice boars. Pure-bred hogs have never been cheaper in history and they are going to sell at prices consistent with the decline in all commodities. They want the Kentucky farmers to raise pure-bred hogs, because they know from practical experience that they are the most efficient and economical pork producers. You will help Kentucky, by helping yourselves, to produce a hog that will make you money, for you know hogs are about the only things that are today paying a nice profit to the Kentucky farmers. So, why not start with one good pure-bred sow and build up a herd of pure-bred Durocs that will make a clear profit of $3 on every pig they produce at 250 lbs. If you do not believe we are stating the facts in the case write Tom Baldwin, Richmond, Ky., one of the best hog men in the state, and get his opinion. Tom has always made money out of hogs and he will tell you how, if you will follow his advice.

We will be glad to supply catalogues to anyone writing for them for this public sale, August 15th, and in any event would like to have a large number of Kentucky farmers present to give them any assistance or advice in this matter, which is sure to make them money in the future. Let's make Kentucky red with red Durocs and keep away from the red side of the ledger.

In Honor of Mrs. Luxon

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Huls enjoyed the outing given on Thursday evening in honor of their visitor, Mrs. Mayme Luxon, of Lexington. They were: Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Nelson, Mrs. Mattie Baird, Mrs. Henry Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Levi

Goff, Mrs. Luxon, Misses Effie Eubank, Elizabeth DeLaney, Pearl Williams, Georgia Baird, Mary Nelson and Sallie Eubank. Messrs. John Alexander Ramsey, Will Huls, John Hart DeLaney, Charles Lee Bush, John T. Quisenberry and Stanley Clines. A delightful luncheon was spread and the young folk later gathered around a huge bonfire and roasted marshmallows and a very delightful time was reported.

Porch Dance at "the Maples"

The sylvan environments of "The Maples," the lovely home of Mrs. Mattie Baird, in Clark county, made a perfect setting for the surprise lawn party and porch dance, given by Miss Pearl Williams Tuesday evening in honor of her cousin's birthday, Miss Georgia Baird. Arranged about the lawn in inviting nooks were seats for the comfort of the many guests, who came. The lawn, with its profusion of roses, zinnias, dahlias, delphiniums and other mid-summer blossoms, was most alluring and through the border of mignonette, forget-me-nots and candy-tuft it was sweet to wander. Music was furnished by an orchestra from Winchester. The punch table was arranged under the graceful drooping boughs of maple trees and from a huge block of ice placed in a platter of mint and ferns the refreshing frappe was served by Mrs. Charles Huls, Mrs. L. R. Rayborne. Ices and cakes were served during the evening. Assisting in the hospitality were Mrs. L. D. Lockridge, Mrs. G. Y. Triplett, and Mrs. T. R. Bowen. The trees, which adorn so beautifully this place, were mingling their shadows with the pinions of approaching morning, the miracle time of the day, when the guests departed from this enchanted spot. The fragrance of flowers, tuneful melodies, charming vistas, stretches of velvety grass beneath blue sky above, the beauties of nature everywhere and above all, the happy mingling of friends old and new, made this occasion one of rare loveliness and which will linger in memory as the culmination of a perfect day in a house which is permeated with the atmosphere of true Southern hospitality and where everything combines to make it as ideal as the one of old Kentucky, immortalized in song and story. About fifty guests were invited. Several friends and relatives from a distance were present, among them being Mrs. Fred Kirkman, Mr. Wm. Teasley, Asheville, C. N.; Mr. Halford Hayes, of Ironton, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ewen, Mr. William Mansfield, of Stanton, Ky.

THE ELECTRIC BELL BUOY

The bell buoy, the solemn tolling of which has been the subject of many a melancholy story in verse, has been much improved upon. It now bears the well-known mark of modern efficiency—the electric light. These buoys are used in some of the inland waterways, according to Mr. Kimbrough, of the Ragan-Gay Motor Co., to guide barges and towboats over the dangerous portions of the channels.

The New York State Department of Public Works has worked out a complete system of buoy lighting in the barge canal through Seneca and Cayuga Lakes. Seneca Lake is deep enough for barges over its entire surface, but there is a shallow area at the north area of Cayuga Lake.

The electric light buoys are used to mark points of safe passage over these shallow areas. Each buoy is equipped with lamps and mechanism for causing intermittent flashing of the lights and an Exide battery to supply the current. The Exides are recharged every two weeks.

Benton Kinsolving Receives Nomination

It will be a source of much gratification and pride to his friends here to learn that Benton Kinsolving, of Shelbyville, former Mt. Sterling boy, has made a runaway race for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney for the district composed of Shelby, Anderson, Spencer, Oldham and Trimble counties, carrying each county but one. Mr. Kinsolving is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Kinsolving, formerly of this city, and is one of the most brilliant young lawyers in the state.

The Louisville Livestock Exchange

Some of the most famous breeders of sheep in the country will have entries for the Farmers' Better Sire Sale at the Bourbon Stock Yards, August 11, according to L. B. Shropshire, secretary of the Kentucky Pure Bred Livestock Association in charge of arrangements for animals to be offered at the sale.

Mr. Shropshire has announced that the 200 purebred bucks and ewes to be sold will be Hampshire, Southdown and Shropshire breeds, about equally divided. They are well selected animals and of the very highest type in their class.

The sheep will begin to arrive at the Bourbon Stock Yards next Tuesday and opportunity will be given members of the junior clubs and others interested to see the animals at the yards before the sale, especially the children of the farm organizations, who will rarely have an opportunity to see as many animals of this standard assembled at a sale.

There will be 2,000 high grades also auctioned at the sale and entries for this division already are on their way to the yards. The demand for animals of both the purebred and the high grade is beyond the earliest expectations and the attendance at the sale will be several thousand.

Col. Dwight Lincoln has been announced as the auctioneer. He is known as the greatest auctioneer of sheep in the country. The committee from the Louisville Live Stock Exchange, under the auspices of which the sale is being conducted, in the campaign for better bred meat animals in Kentucky, is composed of the best business men.

Interest in the livestock industry throughout Kentucky has taken a broader turn within the last week as reports from the packing centers indicate a shortage of meat animals of all types for the first time in months, prices have taken a turn upward in all lines.

Particular demand is being made for high grade animals, thus accentuating the campaign for pure-bred sires and the extermination of the scrub being conducted by the Exchange, University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and the Kentucky Pure Bred Livestock Association.

Campbell Poultrymen Given Some Pointers

As a result of seven poultry culling demonstrations conducted by County Agent H. F. Link, in co-operation with interested farmers, and the Extension Division of the College of Agriculture, more than 230 Campbell county poultrymen have been shown the method of distinguishing between the loafer and the heavy laying hen. A total of 495 hens were examined in the demonstrations and 181 of them rejected because they showed the characteristic indications of being non-producers. Demonstrations were held in all parts of the county and culling circulars distributed to those who attended, in order to assist all poultrymen of the county in eliminating the loafer hens from the flocks.

Lime on Plowed Field Gives Best Crop Yield

Best results in the use of limestone are obtained by applying the material to freshly plowed fields, so that it can be worked in thoroughly with the soil during tillage operations, according to soils specialists at the College of Agriculture. If conditions make it necessary the lime may be applied at any time.

If limestone is spread on the surface of the soil before plowing, disking previous to breaking will aid in mixing the material with the soil so that it will not all be turned to the bottom of the furrow. Where large quantities of lime are used it is often spread on the unplowed soil. No injury to any crop will result from top dressing in this manner. Crops grown during following seasons will be benefited as the lime is plowed in and mixed by tillage.

Limestone is best hauled during the summer season when roads are good and farm work is not pressing. The stone may be piled in the field, where it can be spread when the proper time arrives. With an end-gate spreader for a wagon box a good-sized field may be covered in a day.

The greatest benefit from limestone is derived by clover crops, according to the specialists. Other crops are helped also, but not to the extent that clovers and alfalfa are. Best results with clover crops are obtained if the limestone is applied about one year previous to seeding. If used as top dressing for wheat on fields, where clover is to be seeded, only a limited benefit will be derived by the clover because the lime cannot become mixed with the soil.

Duties of Live Stock Inspectors

Under the authority conferred upon the State Live Stock Sanitary Board of Kentucky by Chapter 69 of the Acts of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, approved March 20, 1918, the following regulations are hereby adopted prescribing the duties of the County Live Stock Inspectors in the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

Section 1—The County Live Stock Inspector shall investigate all reports of contagious and infectious diseases of all live stock within his county and shall at all times co-operate with the Board in preventing, suppressing, controlling and eradicating communicable diseases in live stock. He is hereby authorized to make all necessary investigations, enter any premises and examine live stock wherever he may deem it necessary in the discharge of his duties as live stock inspector.

Section 2—That he shall when authorized by the State Veterinarian, quarantine all animals that are found to be suffering from or exposed to an infectious or contagious disease and if any animals have died to see that the carcasses of dead animals, and all of its parts and products, are properly disposed of either by complete cremation or burying carcass and all of its parts and products, in the earth at a point which is never covered with the overflow of ponds or streams and which is distant not less than one hundred (100) feet from any water-course, well, spring, public highway, residence or stable, so that the entire carcass be covered with at least two (2) inches of quicklime and three (3) feet of earth.

Section 3—It shall be the duty of the County Live Stock Inspector to supervise the cleaning and disinfection of railway live stock pens, alleyways, chutes, etc., through which infected and diseased live stock have passed.

Sub. Sec. (a) To supervise the dipping of sheep wherein scabies have been found or where sheep have been exposed to scabies.

Sub. Sec. (b) The dips at present permitted by the State Live Stock Sanitary Board for the treatment of sheep affected with or exposed to scabies are as follows: Lime and sulphur dip made in the proportion of eight (8) pounds of unslacked lime or eleven (11) pounds of commercial hydrated lime, not air slacked lime and twenty-four (24) pounds of flowers of sulphur or sulphur flour to one hundred (100) pounds of water. Nicotine dip, containing not less than five one hundredths of one per cent of nicotine. The dipping bath should be used at a temperature of 95 to 105 degrees F. Dipping to be repeated in from ten to fourteen days.

Section 4—That the County Live Stock Inspector shall make a monthly report to the State Veterinarian giving the name and address of person or persons who had animals infected with infectious and contagious diseases, also to report the disposition of the carcass of animals that had died also whether the premises are now free from infection, also in what manner disease was controlled.

Sub. Sec. (a) This report shall reach the State Veterinarian not later than the 10th of each month.

Sub. Sec. (b) Failure to comply with the enforcement of these regulations shall be cause for recommendation or removal from the office of County Live Stock Inspector and his removal shall be at the discretion of the State Live Stock Sanitary Board.

Effective on and after July 28th, 1921.

Adopted by the State Live Stock Sanitary Board of Kentucky July 28th, 1921.

W. H. SIMMONS,
State Veterinarian,
W. C. HANNA,
Chairman, State Live Stock Sanitary Board.

AN EDITORIAL ON BUYING

UNLIKE owls and one or two other examples of animal human beings see better in the daylight than they do in the dark.

Yet, it is peculiar how some of us persist in remaining in the dark on the very things that concern us the most.

For instance: Now more than ever before, we ought to see that every cent we spend buys its full quota of value.

We ought to be co-operating with all of the business and economic forces which have been started to make one dollar equal one hundred cents in buying power. Yet, lots and lots of folks go blithely along, making their everyday purchases with their eyes shut tight.

And yet it is so easy to be sure you are spending wisely.

The means of knowing how is in your hands. It is in the advertising columns of this newspaper.

Spend a few minutes now and every day in running through the advertisements printed here. Then buy the products that have proved up under the spotlights of consistent publicity.

MERCHANTS and manufacturers who advertise invite the inspection of thousands of eyes.

Here in the advertising columns you see products that have made good before the critical audience of buyers. These products are full value products. They return you dollar for dollar.

THE horse trading proclivities of the shrewd old David Harum have lost casts. They prove too costly to the perpetrator.

It used to be considered good business to trade a horse with the heavens for one that was sound in wind and limb. But business today is done on such a broad scale—every merchant and manufacturer has so long a list of patrons—that it would be fatal to acquire a reputation of "slipping something over." The basis of modern business is honesty.

ADVERTISING has standardized almost every article you can buy. You know what to expect and what to pay. You don't have to bargain, and dicker, to know that you are getting as good as you give.

That is why it pays to read advertisements and to buy advertised goods. A product's advertising is the best guarantee of its faithful performance and lasting usefulness, or if its definite quality.

IF you value constant satisfaction—if you want to get your full money's worth every time read the advertisements. In them you will find much to save you real money time and energy.

Whether you want food, clothing, furniture or a toy for the children, the advertisements can help you materially.

Read the advertisements, therefore, and buy the advertised products.

Then you can know you're spending your money wisely.

Kentucky Cows Win Among High Class

Kentucky is well represented among the states having high producing cows with 23 animals owned by ten different dairymen included in an official list of 880 Jerseys in the United States that produced more than 50 pounds of butterfat during April, according to J. J. Hooper, head of the dairy department of the College of Agriculture. The list of high producers is contained in the last number of the official publication of the Jersey breed association and is prepared from the list of animals submitted by the agricultural colleges of the country under whose direction the animals were tested. Cow testing work has made it possible for Kentucky dairymen to discover which cows in their herds were making records and is largely responsible for the good showing of the State, Mr. Hooper said.

The highest producing cow in the state for April was Rexdale Catherine, owned by T. A. King, Hopkinsville, according to the official report. She produced 1,071 pounds of milk and 74 pounds of butterfat during the month.

Kentucky dairymen, whose names appeared in the list, together with the number of animals which were recorded, were:

Perrant Brothers, Dover, five; Allen Dale Farms, Shelbyville, five; Harshbourne Farms, Louisville, four; J. C. Askew, Trenton, two; T. A. King, Hopkinsville, two; O. C. Hager, Hebron, one; George Weimer, Augusta, one; W. W. Hampton and Son, Goshen, one; R. J. Shipman, Shelbyville, one, and Somineo Farms, Hopkinsville, one. Allen Dale Farms had two cows in the list by the same sire, Fairy Glen's Raleigh, while Perrant Brothers had two animals among the high producers sired by Hamley's Plymouth Silver.

Good feed and management, coupled with regular tests rather than expensive equipment which the average dairyman cannot afford, has been responsible for the records of the Kentucky cows, according to Mr. Hooper. Tests may be conducted by any farmer on the animals in his herd and is the one sure means of distinguishing between high producers and the merely average cow as well as increasing the value of the herd and its prestige among dairymen.

MORNING CAPS

Every woman loves a morning cap and such dainty ones, as shown in the Rush Terminal Sales Building in New York, makes rising a pleasure. At the top is an exquisite cap of fine lace with rosebud trimmings and silk band and streamers. The cream colored lace and style of the cap in the center makes it quite charming. The Pullman cap at the bottom combines a thing of dainty beauty with real service to the woman who is traveling by train or automobile.

A Tonic For Women

"I was hardly able to drag, I was so weakened," writes Mrs. W. F. Ray, of Easley, S. C. "The doctor treated me for about two months, still I didn't get any better. I had a large family and felt I surely must do something to enable me to take care of my little ones. I had heard of

CARDUI
The Woman's Tonic

"I decided to try it," continues Mrs. Ray. "I took eight bottles in all. I regained my strength and have had no more trouble with womanly weakness. I have ten children and am able to do all my housework and a lot outdoors. I can sure recommend Cardui."

Take Cardui today. It may be just what you need. At all druggists.

THE RETAIL OUTLOOK FOR FALL AND SPRING

There is not a retail merchant in the country who is not asking or thinking the question, "What kind of business can I expect this fall?"

The small town dealer is particularly interested in the answer to this query, because he is in closer contact with farming activity than the city man, he is dependent upon farm prosperity for his own welfare, and the condition of agriculture, after all, measures the hope of the future for every one of us.

No positive forecast of business conditions during the next autumn months can be given. Many of us may think we are prophets, but most of the world's so-called seers have proved to be nothing but guessers. The good ones have won praise for their farsightedness and the poor ones have been cursed as fools, but they were all "guessers," nevertheless.

However, the matter may be approached with some degree of certainty, especially after a careful study of all the facts bearing upon present conditions and the relation of those facts to what is reasonably sure to take place in the near future.

In the first place the farmer very naturally joined the ranks of those who, many months ago, suddenly stopped buying anything except those articles which represented absolute necessities.

It is not my purpose to blame any one class for the slow re-adjustment of war-time prices, or for any other irregularity that may have prevailed. The simple truth is that these irregularities have prevailed; and without taking time to scold, the present job is to assist in every possible way to bring things back to level, to cut down the high peaks and elevate the low spots, so that there may be less of a difference between living costs and production receipts.

The small town merchant may find relief in the indisputable fact that the farming class, which is the one that all of us must depend upon for prosperity, can recover more quickly from a bad economic situation than any other class. There are several good reasons for this.

The farmer who owns his place, always has his 'plant.' No one can close up his shop, or burn it down, or destroy it in any manner. The farmer's broad acres are always there to yield something in the way of returns, season after season, even if those returns are not all that may be desired.

The farmer always has his job. It may be a hard one, and in many ways unsatisfactory, but it is his job and he has it as long as he wants it. The farmer is therefore, in business, to some extent, all the time. His powers of recovery are accordingly better than those of other lines of industry.

We must remember too, that what we call "state of mind" has a lot to do with business conditions. And if it be true that time heals all things, we are safe in saying that the farmer's mental condition will sweeten as the months go by. Put one fair crop season in between an abnormally profitable year and a better year 1921-22 which we may safely expect, and it is reasonable to say that the farmer will be feeling much happier this fall. If he does, he will begin to buy as he once did.

There is no disputing the statement that we have a "buyer's market" among the farmers, at this time, just as we have it in the cities. We had a seller's market a year or so ago, and everybody grabbed everything in sight, and paid all sorts of fabulous prices, and trade was drunk. That's it—business was on the biggest jamboree of its career, and it was bound to wake up some time with a bad head.

Then, suddenly, the buyers took charge of the situation and stopped spending money. The city man found that he could make clothes wear twice as long, and that there were a lot of things he could do without.

And the farmer decided that he could go for a considerable period without buying machinery or new cars, or extra household equipment, or as many articles of wearing apparel as he had been spending his money for.

The seller found that he had to sell. No one walked up and took goods away from him. The buyer became boss. And he hasn't been buying since unless sold.

That is one answer—the most important one—to the present state of business. People will buy, but the selling effort must be more earnest, more intelligent, more sustained.

So I believe we are safe in saying that the farmer is a little more inclined to buy now than he was a few months ago; that the prospects for another crop and the ability to forget what has gone before are putting cheer into his heart, and that extra sales effort now and this fall and winter will enable the retail merchant to close the year 1921 with a much better financial showing than he thought he was going to be able to make.

Furthermore, it is perfectly obvious to me that the sensible line for the retailer to follow in selling is that which represents the least resistance. This means, sell the things that are easiest to sell—that are already half sold by means of advertising, or that are at least more readily accepted by the customer as a result of such advertising.

"Consumer acceptance," created by advertising, never meant as much to the retail dealer as it does in these days, when "consumer stubbornness" is proving to be a real obstacle in the path of business.

Not being in as willing a buying mood as heretofore, it is only natural that the buyer should ignore the unknown, untried, experimental things and stick to the products whose quality is pledged to him in honest advertising.

It is a time when buyers must choose carefully; must discriminate in matters of quality, reputation of the manufacturer, general service. These things are insured in widely advertised goods. They must be. If they were not, such goods could not be widely advertised except at a loss to the maker of them.

There will be a more flexible market this fall—an easier market, in a certain measure. But it will be a buyer's market for a long time to come.

Until the price of the farmer's shoes is more nearly commensurate with the price of the grain he now grows; until the purchasing power of his bushel of wheat or corn is greater than it is today, it will be a buyer's market as far as the farmer is concerned.

Therefore, the retail merchant cannot afford to waste time and effort in unexplored fields. He must use every sales help he can get. There are many manufacturers who are eager to work with him in helping him to sell. And, together, they can sell. Business will be better because merchants can make it better, if they will. Let any one of the readers of this paper try it out along this line, pushing merchandise that is already pushed for him, and his reward will be apparent in increased business and larger profits.

CAREFUL SELLING

Write plainly, legibly. Repeat customer's name. Check up sales amount. Remove price when requested. Consult delivery manager before promising delivery. Make sure packages are wrapped immediately. Be careful in directing customers. Read the advertisements of your store and also of others. Make note of merchandise asked for but not in stock.

THE U. S. NOBBY TREAD

Where the going is specially heavy with snow, mud or sand, in hilly country where maximum traction on the road is a factor, no other tire tread yet devised is quite so effective, or so wholly approved by motoring opinion, as the U. S. Nobby Tread.

Its very simplicity—three rows of diagonal knobs, gripping the road—is the result of all the years of U. S. Rubber experience with every type of road the world over.

If every one listened to experience,
how much they'd save

STOP and talk to the next man you see with U. S. Tires on his car. Ask him why.

Most likely you'll hear an interesting story about his tire experiments—before the answer was found. Money wasted. Promises unkept. Trouble on the road—humorous to every one except the man who went through it.

Finally U. S. Tires. And U. S. Tires ever since.

Perhaps it's the experience of U. S. Tire buyers that makes them more emphatic in their preference than ever this year.

When these men have tried most everything by the way of "staggering bargains", "hurrah discounts", "discontinued lines at less" and so forth they know what not to get.

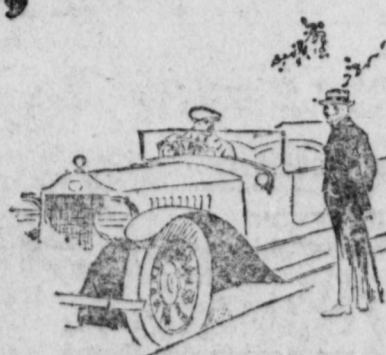

They want a fresh, live tire. With a good reputation. That's everything it says it is. With the people behind it who back it up.

There are 92 U. S. Factory Branches.

Your local U. S. Dealer is drawing upon them continually to keep his stocks sized up, complete—to give you service.

Whenever he gets one or a hundred tires from a U. S. Factory Branch, they are newly made this season's tires.

Sold to you at a net price. Full values. Square-dealing. A reputable maker. A reputable dealer. The whole transaction as befits the leadership of the oldest and largest rubber organization in the world.
